Hi! My name is Miyuki. I'm a third-year junior high school student. My father works for a big car company. His company just started a new business in China, and they want my father to work there. He has to stay there for three years. My mother will go to China with my father. They also want me to go with them.

Living in a foreign country for three years sounds exciting. I can learn a new language and culture. I will also have a lot of different experiences and make new friends. However, that means I can't go to high school in Japan. I have good friends here, and I don't want to leave them. Also, if I don't study in Japan for three years, it will be difficult to get into a college or university I want to go to.

There is another thing I have to think about. If I stay in Japan, I will live with my grandmother and grandfather. I love them, but I want to be with my parents longer. Moving to China or staying in Japan? I have to decide next month. What should I do?
