Hello. I'm Bob from Australia. I started studying at Joto High School one month ago. Here, I found an interesting difference between Japanese and Australian school lives; who cleans our school.

In my country, we do not clean our classrooms. We sometimes throw away trash in our classrooms, but the next day, someone has already cleaned it. Every school has special workers who clean all the places in the school. People think that cleaning is not students' job and that they should just study at school.

At Joto High School, however, groups of students clean the places they use. At first, I was surprised and didn't want to join in cleaning. But now, I have changed my idea. I believe this system is also good for my country. I have two reasons.
